A misidentification occurred in the case of Agroeca inopina, cited as a new for Italian fauna (Table 1) after the record of Paschetta, 2005, cited in Isaia et al., 2007. A recent re-examination of the material lead us to identify the specimen as Agroeca cuprea Menge, 1873. As a consequence, the record of A. inopina for Italy is not valid.

The following crucial sentence referring to the paragraph concerning Macrothele calpeiana was deleted during the editing process. “Our friends Fabio de Vita and Matteo Grotto (pers. comm., 2007) refer about two records of this species in the nearby of Varese and in the town of Casalmaggiore (Province of Cremona), respectively. Specimen occurred in the potting compost of olive trees imported from Spain”. Therefore, the four dots in Fig. 1A for Macrothele calpeiana refer to material examined (one male from Almè, Province of Bergamo and one male from Sommacampagna, Province of Verona) plus the above-cited records of Varese and Casalmaggiore (Province of Cremona).
